Re: USA v. Gwenn Wycoff and Frank C. Ozak
Signed Permanent Injunction and Background

We are pleased to write this letter in compliance with the Permanent Injunction signed September 8, 2011 in the matter of U.S. v. Wycoff, et al. . . . You can obtain a copy of that Permanent Injunction by going to www.passingbucks.com. We would recommend that you do so. We are also required to tell you that:

“Under no circumstances should you rely on the content of either volume of The Art of Passing the Buck in determining a trust's federal income tax liability, whether that trust presently exists or is to be created in the future. For all such matters, you should instead seek appropriate professional assistance (e.g. from an attorney, certified public accountant, or otherwise properly licensed and reputable tax return preparer).”

All that said, we would like to announce we feel victorious with the settlement agreement reached with the Department of Justice in the case of U.S. v. Wycoff, et al. There are many reasons for our satisfaction explained in this letter to our customers.

And by the way, we thought we told you in the book, several times, to consult with professionals. You will soon discover, in our report to follow, what happened about that . . .

Many of you received the first notification about the legal matters surrounding The Art of Passing the Buck, and you have been to the website www.passingbucks.com to read the Preliminary Injunction posted several months ago along with the responses to those allegations.

Other than our initial comments, we remained silent about the sticky details, suffering the reputation of Gwenn and Frank to be questioned, while we all dealt with the overwhelming legal entanglements and proper response to straighten out the scrambled facts. From this journey came great revelations, extremely important to anyone who wishes to pass on any kind of wealth. It is nearly impossible to play
